

MICKEY'S CHRISTMAS CAROL

Ebenezer Scrooge (portrayed of course by Scrooge McDuck) is discovering the Christmas spirit the hard way—revisiting his past by gazing through the window (plussed with clear plastic panes) of Fezzywig's Tea Shop. In this charming version of the Dickens classic put on by Mickey and his friends, many Disney favorites put in a welcome appearance, including glamorous Daisy who portrays the young Scrooge's ladylove, Isabelle, bedecked in her holiday best. Also at play at Mr. Fezzywig's party are Huey, Dewey and Louie, putting a festive final touch on the Christmas tree, (plussed with pewter and miniature ornaments) and like Scrooge and Daisy, bringing holiday merriment throughout every season.

TIM BURTON'S THE NIGHTMARE BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Devilry, singing skeletons, and undersea mayhem make things merrily macabre as the demented denizens of Halloweentown welcome their Pumpkin King in their own wonderfully warped way. While sweet rag doll Sally looks on amidst the eerily animated bony band of the vocalizing Skeleton Tree, (plussed with pewter and real rope cord) the delighted Devil (plussed with pewter tail and feet) and the charmingly repellent Undersea Gal (plussed with pewter arms and neck) give Jack the highest compliment possible: he made flesh crawl! Behind the scenes, the puppet kings (and queens) animated 227 individual characters for the grisly engrossing tale, leading to the creepy characters celebrated by these ghoulishly spook-tacular sculptures.

DUMBO

“Right from the beginning Dumbo was a happy picture,” said Walt Disney, and the little star of that classic film sports a suitably happy smile in this all-new sculpture. Perched high atop a burning-building set in the Big Top before a big city audience, the precious baby pachyderm—wonderfully winsome in full clown makeup—is thrilled because he’s about to make the leap into a flight of faith leading him to fame, showbiz success and best of all, a joyful reunion with his mother. Complete with his littlest yet biggest cheerleader Timothy Mouse and the rarely portrayed confidence-granting “magic feather,” Dumbo (plussed with bronze Timothy miniature and pewter feather) is sure to inspire soaring spirits in everyone who he smiles upon.
